

The New York Times

September 21, 2011

Home & Garden

Published: September 21, 2011

Shopping for Art Deco Objects

"Art Deco doesn't age, because of the lines," said the London designer Guy Oliver, by way of explaining the style's enduring popularity. "You can use it in an old house or a new house, you can mix it up." Mr. Oliver, the managing director of the interior design firm Oliver Laws, scoured New York City for Art Deco objects, both original and reproduction, that met his approval.

Tamoyo bench by Antonio da Motta; $8,750 at Espasso, (212) 219-0017, espasso.com.