

THE NEW YORK TIMES, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 2006

CURRENTS

Aric Chen

F3

FURNITURE

A Bar You Can Take For a Walk

A playful, eclectic collection of furniture by Isay Weinfeld, a São Paulo-based architect, is making its American debut at the Brazilian design importer Espasso's new showroom in TriBeCa. Mr. Weinfeld, 53, a modernist architect who is well known in Brazil (he designed São Paulo's Fasano Hotel), has created pieces like the steel-and-wood armchair ($6,950), below, which has oversize cushions meant to look somewhat disarrayed. His square bar cart ($11,573), above, holds trays and boxes made of three kinds of wood; its sides open like drawers and it has a leather leash so it can be "pulled around, as a little dog," Mr. Weinfeld said. Espasso, 38 North Moore Street (Hudson Street); (212) 219-0017; espasso.com.

Ozier Muhammad/The New York Times

s by Jonathan Player for The New York Times

re being unveiled this week in London to co-furniture fair. While the collection strays ere's still an oddness to everything," he said, he objects themselves." The silver-plated tea could have been done in the 20's or 30's, or ght ($657), top, relies on an exposed light bulb ge bowls, above, are actually marble stools o $2,440). For more information, www.